Dear Reader:

In American Opinion for last September we wrote that the crime of Watergate amounts to chicken stealing when compared with the real crimes of Richard Nixon. We have since repeated the theme in speeches from Los Angeles to Toronto to Dallas, and wrote of it again in last month's American Opinion. We beg your indulgence once more to repeat: "If charges are to be brought against the man who is now President of the United States, let them be brought with dignity and in the proper forum. And let the charge be the planned destruction of the United States of America."

For months American Opinion has been presenting grounds for such a charge. This March issue offers more. Gary Allen and Medford P. Allen and Medford Evans write here, for instance, about the real and terrifying purposes of the energy crisis which President Nixon contrived through massive inflation, outrageous controls, and a provocative foreign policy. Here, too, John Schmitz dieses John Schmitz discusses a decision of the Nixon Court Supreme Court which the President packed with jurists so far to the Left that it is the President packed with jurists so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurist so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurist so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurist so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurist so far to the president packed with jurists so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurists so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurists so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurists so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurists so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurists so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurists so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurists so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurists so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurists so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurists so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurists so far to the Left that it is the president packed with jurists so far to the packed with jurists so far to the president packed with jurists so far to the president packed with jurists so far to the packed with jurists so far to the packed with jurists so far to the to the Left that it has now manufactured a constitutional right for a mother to kill her unborn child, even as the Nixon Administration Administration publishes "guidelines" on which aborted (but still living) best still living) babies may be dissected for "study." And then there is the matter of the new anti-Communist Government in Chile (see a new anti-Communist Government base) just in Chile (see page nine), to which President Nixon has just sent as Our American the control of sent as our Ambassador one David O. Popper, a protege of Alger Hise when as a Alger Hiss who has himself been identified by a defector as a Communist operative.

There are, of course, many more grounds for pressing even more serious charges against President Nixon. At least two of them brilliantly summarized by Professor Evans on page ninety-four, where he writes: "I'm no pessimist, but I sometimes wonder what can be done when the détente with Red China and Red Russia is used as a defense of the man suspected of complicity in Watergate."

Sincerely

Scott Stanley 1.

ABORTIONISM

The Growing Cult Of Baby Murder

John G. Schmitz, the former United States Congressman from California who opposed Richard Nixon as the American Party candidate for President in 1972, is now a professor of philosophy and logic in California. He also writes and publishes the fortnightly Schmitz Newsletter, available at five dollars the year, from Post Office Box 1516, Tustin, California 92680. John Schmitz lectures widely.

■ On January 22, 1973, the Supreme Court of the United States handed down the latest and by far the worst in a long series of appalling decisions which has seriously undermined the foundations of the moral order in America. The decisions in favor of criminals, perverts, and pornographers; the decisions striking down so many reasonable and necessary provisions for order, loyalty, and discipline in government service and in teaching, the decisions undermining the stability of the family and the right of parents to control the education of their own children ... all of these reached their logical and apocalyptic culmination in a decision legalizing mass murder of the innocent

There are still some good people who do not want to call abortion what it really is, of course. Some are honestly not yet fully aware that abortion is murder. Others, out of timidity or a misplaced charity, euphemize and ameliorate and excuse. But abortion is killing. The action of an abortionist makes live babies dead.

Anyone who doubts it can study the photographs, now readily and widely available, of what an aborted baby looks like. And since abortion is killing, surely any terms which blunt the harsh truth about this act make it easier to evade the moral imperatives involved, to blank out the termination of millions of the human innocent and to take refuge in fashionable cant about "not imposing our morality or our religion on others."

Did we think it was "imposing our morality or our religion on others" when we executed the commandants of the Nazi death camps after World War II? Hardly, for we had seen the photographs of the emaciated, tortured shadows of men who survived to be liberated, and the dismembered bodies and piled ashes of those who did not.

The aborted baby, too, is dismembered and (usually) incinerated, after being dissected alive in the womb (dilatation and curettage), ground to a pulp (suction), pickled alive (saline injection, the equivalent of being burned to death the whole body turning an ugly red), or cut out of the womb and allowed to die whole in a bucket (hysterotomy). And the unborn baby can and does feel pain. He dies in indescribable agony in each of these commonly used methods of abortion. Many nurses refuse to assist at abortions because they can't bear to hear the pitiful screaming of the unborn child as it is destroyed.

The fight for life is so fierce that a few of the babies live through abortion. But even when they are born viable, they have not altogether escaped their would-be murderers. At Greater Bakersfield Memo-
