CAR CRAFT February 1984 VOLUME 32 Number 2

With a story title like "New Kit on the Block," we had to have some sort of lead shot with a little kid, and young Cameron ("It was the closest name to 'Camaro' that we could come up with!") Hanson turned out to be the perfect model. Of course, he ate the blower pulley after the photo session. His dad's story on Cragar's new street blower might prove a little more filling!

24. For too long we've been thinking that wind tunnels are just for race cars. As Neil Britt found out, this is no longer the case. If nothing else, this story is going to have you giving your spoilers and whale tails a whole new inspection. Are they really working or not?

50. Why is this man smiling? Wouldn't you be happy if you'd swapped your anemic "corporate" 305 engine for a stout-hearted Rat motor using all factory parts? You bet you would, and so is Jim Losee.
