

COVER STORY

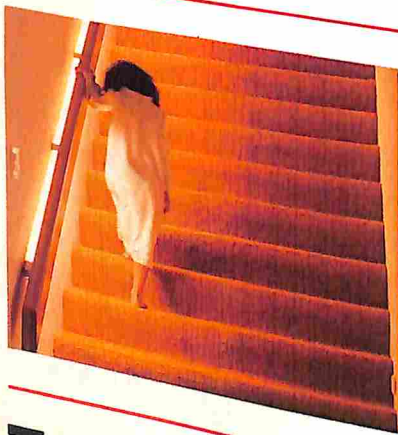

Viruses, worms

Viruses, worms, trojans, and bombs are electronic infections that make computers sick. They have crippled huge government networks as well as PCs. How widespread and contagious are these viruses? POPULAR SCIENCE examines these questions and purported preventions, including "vaccine" programs and protective hardware. Page 59

Inside the greenhouse

It is warming up inside Greenhouse Earth. Part II of this series covers the science behind the greenhouse effect, from Amazonian forest to the atmosphere. Scientists are finding that there is no quick fix for this fever. Page 63

Home lighting

The picture is bright for home lighting. A special section highlights the technology behind innovative wild lights, micro halogens, two-circuit track lighting, programmed mood lighting, strip lighting, and a host of other illuminators. Page 79

Two-seat heat

The race heats up among the new two-seaters. POPULAR SCIENCE tests the Nissan 300ZX, the Mazda RX-7, and the Porsche 944 S2 to determine the road to power. Page 38
