Dear Reader:

The Christmas painting by Daniel Michael Canavan, which you saw on your way in, is one of a distinguished series dating back almost a dozen years. It is one of a distinguished series dating and almost a dozen years. But for all of its simplicity of theme and economy of detail and the simplicity of theme and economy of detail and the simplicity of theme and economy of detail and the simplicity of theme and economy of detail and the simplicity of theme and economy of detail and the simplicity of theme and economy of detail and the simplicity of theme and economy of detail and the simplicity of theme and economy of detail and the simplicity of theme and economy of detail and the simplicity of theme. economy of detail we think this one might rightly be called great. What Mr. Capagian because the same of the same What Mr. Canavan has done is somehow to have captured in one little girl the scarting little girl the sanctity and wonder and joy and promise of Christmas itself.

Pressed as we are by malignant conspiracy between inflation and ression. harassed by the depression, harassed by the myriad tyrannies of government driven mad, repulsed by the myriad tyrannies of government driven mad, repulsed by what Malcolm Muggeridge calls the randy clergy, mini-skirted pure. mini-skirted nuns, and Marxist priests "in beret and parachulist rig," we may popethology to the parachulist priests and parachulist rig," we may popethology to the parachulist priests and parachulist rig," we may popethology to the parachulist priests and parachulist priests are priests and parachulist priests and p rig," we may nonetheless pause now to find hope and courage in our love for, and commitment love for, and commitment to, a single child. As we do so we may take heart with Mr. Cananas, the single child. As we do so we may take heart with Mr. Canavan's little girl in knowing that we are not alone.

The investigation

The joy and meaning of Christmas cannot help but remind us the values of curs of of that the values of our civilization and of this Republic are yet alive and honored by second of this Republic are yet and yet are yet and yet and yet are yet and yet and honored by scores of millions of Americans. The homely virtues of good women nurture of good women nurturing wholesome families and preserving our culture with love and first? culture with love and faithfulness; the nobility of strong men laboring at honest work and defend at honest work and defending high purposes, determined to remain free; the traditional placement free; the traditional clergymen whose faith remains a rock that breaks the dry bones of cynicism the dry bones of cynicism and raises from the dead the human spirit; the exceptional scholar forms and raises from the dead the human spirit; the exceptional scholar for whom wonder is a companion and wisdom is still not a clické the about the still not a clické the about t is still not a cliche; the skilled physician, having done all that he could do, praying at a result of the skilled physician, having done all that he could do, praying at a result of the fallen could do, praying at a patient's bedside; and, the widow of the fallen soldier or policemen with the soldier or policemen with soldier or policeman, with pride and unspeakable grief, clutching the folded flag to her breest folded flag to her breast — we all know of such people, and their example reminds us of the country of example reminds us of the growing courage and sustaining decency of our countrymen gethers? our countrymen gathered in their homes this Christmas. May God bless them, and you

LIBERAL GITY

Will it get what it deserves?

Lawrence P. McDonald is a U.S. Congressman, a physician, and a Democrat. Dr. McDonald also serves as a member of the Council of The John Birch Society.

■ During a mid-October recess, Congress heard it from the people as Members learned that hardly anybody outside of New York City wants his tax money to be used to bail out New York City. Polls tell the same story, and so does Congressional mail. But, back in Washington, Congress was soon hearing from pressure groups that the nation and possibly even the world will collapse in economic disaster if New York isn't rescued.

We shall soon see who prevails.

Much of the unwillingness to "help" New York by rescuing profligate "Liberals" from the consequences of their acts stems, I realize, from a great well of resentment against New York and New Yorkers.
