

AIMING FOR THE 21st CENTURY...

At GLOCK, we've looked beyond the status quo to respond now to the growing security needs of the coming century. Not by pursuing the old technology that forged the steel revolver, but by mastering a new technology. One that will create a new generation of sidearms.

We call it "polymer technology"—and already it has spawned the remarkable GLOCK 17 and GLOCK 19, 9mm semi-automatic pistols.

With fewer parts and less weight, GLOCK pistols truly represent the handguns of the future. Accurate and reliable, and using advanced ammunition, they have been adopted by NATO and law enforcement agencies around the world.

This is indeed the beginning of a new era. And a tradition that is destined to last well into the 21st century. And we at GLOCK are its vanguard.

THE COVER: Marlin unveils its Model 1894 Classic rifle chambered in two of yesteryear's favorite small-game cartridges, the .25-20 and .32-20 Win. With its 22" barrel, half magazine and straight-grip stock, the Marlin lever-gun approaches its centennial just as it began it, solid machined steel, and American walnut. Only the added cross-bolt safety is a sign of the times. Design by Colin Moore; photo by John R. Lamson.
