

LETTERS TO THE EDITORS

CONTINUED

The total evidence from a score of liaison officers and 600 rescued Allied airmen makes nonsense of the charges of collaboration. Major Linn Farish, senior American assigned to Tito's headquarters in 1944, was at first inclined to believe the charges against the Cetniks; indeed it was he who brought out the first Partisan "documentation" against Mihajlović. But after further experience in Yugoslavia he repudiated the significance of the "documents." In a report written in May 1944 he castigated the folly of supporting the Partisans in a war of extermination against the Cetniks. Before he was killed, Farish's opinion of the Partisan movement had evolved to the point of complete condemnation.

In the May 5 LIFE you reproduced only half the poster offering a reward for the head of Tito. The offer as actually printed also offered 100,000 gold marks for the head of Mihajlović!

Овај прокламација је једна од најважнијих докумената који се налазе у архиви Лина Фарша, сениорног америчког везника у Титојевим штабовима. Фарш је био један од првих америчких везника који је републицирао своје мишљење о Титојевим партизанима и њиховим односима према четницима. У својој изјави из Маја 1944. године он је јасно изложио своје мишљење о томе да партизани нису борили против четника, већ су их подржавали. Овај документ је од велике важности за разумевање историје Југославије током Другог светског рата.

"As I suppose is natural in these circumstances," General Eisenhower told a nationwide TV and radio audience as he landed at Washington on June 1, "all other emotions are drowned out by the overwhelming realization that we're home again. That's enough for us." Then, after reporting to the President, he stood outside the White House wearing a broad smile and three ribbons—the Army Distinguished Service Medal with three Oak Leaf clusters, the Navy D.S.M., the Legion of Merit. Two days later he took off his uniform and went to Abilene (pp. 15-21) to make his first political speech.
