INCORPORATING NATURE MAGAZINE

The Journal of The American Museum of Natural History

Gardner D. Stout, President Thomas D. Nicholson, Director

Vol. LXXX, No. 7 August-September 1971

4 AUTHORS

10 LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

- 14 UNDER THE POWER OF THE GRAN GADU Louis C. Whiton
From the Creator of the World to the shaman Raineh to a bursitis sufferer flows the potency of the healer's art.

- 24 A NATURALIST AT LARGE
A TIME FOR EVERY PURPOSE Robert Sommer
Even without realizing it, our every perception of the world is vitalized by a sense of inexorable continuity.

- 28 SENSUOUS SYMBIONTS OF THE SEA Lewis Thomas
Photographs by Douglas Faulkner
Out of the primal broth, sea species have evolved the sophisticated chemical prerequisites for togetherness and individuality.

- 38 THE APES OF GIBRALTAR Barbara R. and Michael H. MacRoberts
The Crown's revered mascots are probably escapees from Moorish pet markets.

- 48 WELLFLEET TAVERN Eric Ekholm and James Deetz
The snug congeniality of an island tavern helped ease a whaler's rugged life in early Cape Cod days.

- 58 HELLFIRE Sigurdur Thorarinsson
Once considered the doorway to Satan's lair by awed Icelanders, Mount Hekla may provide answers to some important geologic questions.

- 64 THE RHYTHM OF THE FLOWERS John D. Palmer
Why do crocuses bloom only in springtime, and asters not until fall?

- 74 SKY REPORTER John P. Wiley, Jr.

- 76 CELESTIAL EVENTS Thomas D. Nicholson

- 82 DIGGING SHANIDAR
A review by C. Loring Brace
Although written with the sometimes annoying terseness of an Old West cowpoke, a "hard-nosed dirt archeologist's" account of the Neanderthal discoveries in Iraq is a "corking good adventure story."

96 SUGGESTED ADDITIONAL READING

COVER: The intimate relationship between this emperor sea bass and the other organisms that share the New Caledonia reef reflects an ancient tendency of life.
