ENTERTAINMENT
CONQUERED
REALITY

Gabler persuasively argues that entertainment has become 'a force so overwhelming it has finally metastasized into life.'"
—Time Out

"A fantastically smart, astute, scary study"
—Esquire

"A thoughtful, in places chilling, account of the way entertainment values have hollowed out American life"
—N.Y. Times Book Review

The day we found a monster in our mailroom

This happened in Tokyo. A Japanese mother returned a kid's parka to us. And somebody in Shipping discovered a toy in the pocket — a goofy, 4-inch monster.

Well, figuring some little kid would miss it, he sent it back.

The next thing you know, we received a postcard from a very grateful mother.

Seems that goofy monster was her kid's favorite toy.

Mind you, we get cards and letters all the time at Lands' End® — thanking us for the little unexpected things we do.

A lady in Germany wrote that she ordered a necktie for her son — who usually doesn't wear ties — asking us to send him instructions on how to tie it.

Instead, one of our people tied one to show him how. And sent it in a gift box, for extra measure.

And then, there's the English chap who sent back one of our Original Attaches — well worn — asking us to repair a broken zipper.

We sent him a brand new Attache.

He wrote back that not only was he delighted by the replacement — he even likes the new color better.

Wherever Lands' End customers are, we try to do right by them, just as we do here at home.

Only here, we've been doing it for thirty years and more.
