

"Puerto Rican white rum makes a smoother dry martini than gin or vodka."

"We consider our Puerto Rican white rum martini a classic."

Equestrian trainer Hector Gandia and his wife, artist Janet D'Esopo.

The white rum martini is every bit as crisp and dry as the gin or vodka variety. Yet it possesses a smooth refinement the others lack.

White rum also makes decidedly smoother drinks mixed with tonic or soda, or in Bloody Marys.

All because every drop of Puerto Rican white rum is aged at least one full year, by law. And when it comes to smoothness, aging is the name of the game.

Hint: Some bartenders maintain that the crispest white rum martinis are shaken instead of stirred.

Make sure the rum is Puerto Rican.

The Puerto Rican people have been making rum for almost five centuries. Their specialized skills and dedication result in a rum of exceptional dryness and purity. No wonder over 85% of the rum sold in this country comes from Puerto Rico.

Dream Fight

The fighters offer a classic confrontation of styles and personalities. Sugar Ray Leonard is a U.S. Olympic hero, a deft and youthful boxer who is the media's child. Roberto Duran is a smoldering presence, the Panamanian whose "hands of stone" have won him 70 fights. In Montreal this week, they will battle for the welterweight championship. In his report, Pete Axthelm analyzes their explosive talents on the eve of what promises to be a dream fight. Page 48

The Venice Summit

President Carter sets off this week for a summit in Venice with America's restive allies. In a dress rehearsal, West Germany's Chancellor Schmidt, Great Britain's Prime Minister Thatcher (right) and other leaders of the Common Market met in Venice last week and called for admission of the Palestine Liberation Organization to the Middle East peace talks—a challenge to the Camp David accords. Page 32

Born-Again Christians

In the past year, the government of Hua Guofeng has allowed Chinese Christians to practice their faith openly. In return for this new freedom, the believers must support Communism and accept government control of their institutions. Page 85

A Boost for Reagan

The Presidential race is now a tossup, the latest NEWSWEEK Poll reveals. Ronald Reagan has risen sharply in the public's esteem and Jimmy Carter is being hurt by the long-shot candidacy of independent John Anderson. Page 24

Hyperactive Kids

Hyperactivity is a baffling disorder that afflicts 2.5 million U.S. children. It requires sensitive therapy, involves a controversial drug treatment and takes huge doses of patience from parents. Page 59
