- 28 The Touchdown That Didn't Count
The final moments of Ohio State's upset by Michigan State will be chewed over by fans for years
- 32 A Quiet Man Makes the Bullets Zing
Wes Unseld's knees are good again. Nobody talks about him, but the Bullets are vandalizing the NBA Central
- 34 Bumper Year for a Robust Crop
There are more rookies in the NFL this season than ever before, and some of them are playing superbly
- 40 A Football Odyssey
Ron Fimrite takes in three big football games in 48 hours and rediscovers the enthusiasms of his youth
- 54 End of Salad Days for Bluefin Tuna
Laws recently passed to protect the decimated Atlantic schools may be too late to save the giant fish
- 72 Ten Tons, and Then Some
Horsepulling is an old and honorable sport and still a way of life in a few sections of the country
- 100 Lady with a Lock on Life
Even after years of eye-for-an-eye and tooth-for-a-tooth battles, Fabulous Moolah remains the belle of the brawl

Next week

A HOCKEY ORIGINAL, Goalie Ken Dryden of Montreal faces a stern weeklong test in his comeback. Passing that barrier could be the saving of his troubled team, says Mark Mulvoy.

SKI AWAY from it all into the back valleys of Austria where, William Johnson finds, the slopes are uncrowded, the snowy settings unbeatable—and the schnapps unparalleled.

WHERE IT'S AT has been the U.S. Geological Survey's concern for 95 years. Bil Gilbert describes how some Survey maps can spot you to within 40 feet on the face of the earth.
