COVER

F. Wallace Taber's opportunity to photograph a cheetah in a dome palm tree came in the Upper Sedan along the Nile River, while on safari on the dark continent last year. Reputedly the world's fastest land mammal, the cheetah does not climb, but it was apparently chased up the tree by dogs of the natives, who called the scene to Taber's attention.

THE SMART HUNTER LOOKS BACK...and AHEAD!

The shotguns are cleaned, and in the corner. Rifles shine on the rack. Last fall's hunts are over...gone and forgotten. But that's not as it should be. Winter evenings around the cozy fire are times to recall happy, hunting memories...to re-live thrills...to look ahead to the new year just opening.

Did lady luck fail you? Did you draw a blank? Are there no grand trophies or adventures to recall? There's no need to just forget it all. These winter evenings can be put to invaluable service to you. For instance, why not try a "hunting season post mortem" by yourself or with friends? In other words, find out exactly where you went wrong...and why? Find out what it takes to bring success next time.

You're a big game man, we'll say. Remember that bull elk that thundered across the little mountain park? Daylight was brief minutes past. Was that antlers on that massive head, or was it only branches? Hunter's eyes play such scurrilous tricks. You raised the rifle, took aim, then lowered. You just weren't sure. As the great bull wheeled, before plunging away, you saw—but alas, too late—the head of a lifetime vanish into the mountain gloom. Oh...why, oh why didn't you have your Bushnell Binoculars handy? Bushnell brilliance would have erased those cloudy shadows! Tonight that trophy bull would be mounted above your fireplace.

In other cases, you will perceive equally important factors which can contribute to your better aim, judgment and general preparedness. But don't brush this off by saying: I'm just a small game hunter; migratory bird hunter; bird and wildlife naturalist; conservationist, target shooter, photographer or just "happy-go-lucky" camper. IT MAKES NO DIFFERENCE! It will pay you to TAKE STOCK. Review the season. Remember no true Rifleman should remain a "tenderfoot" or "Short Sighted" all his life!

A man is marked by the gear he packs, and how he acts when the going is rough. Fine Binoculars, like Bushnells, are the mark of a smart hunter. They are as essential as your gun and ammo.

COLLEGE CHOOSES "BUSHNELL" OVER

7 LEADING BINOCULAR MAKES
 A leading Western College* writes: "We have selected your glass as our choice over seven (7) other binoculars tested. In addition to the competing binoculars, one costing four times more than your glass was also tested as a standard comparison. We used a series of 5 optical charts arranged to cover all quarters of the field from the center to the edge. It is surprising how many glasses will show defects when tested monocularly on optical charts. I consider your glasses equal to the best examined both optically and mechanically."
