

Forbes

THE COVER

184 Angel in the Valley

Audrey MacLean backs high-tech dreams with cash. But make no mistake: This is one tough celestial guardian.
By Mary Beth Grover

192 The order of angels

Ten who sprinkle green dust.
By Joanne Gordon and Mary Beth Grover

ALSO ON THE COVER

174 The power of ideas

The AES story: managing by the Holy Scriptures.
By Phyllis Berman

366 Smaller, better?

Charles Royce sees bargains in some small-cap stocks.
By James M. Clash and Eric S. Hardy

367 Time to buy junk?

The yield spread with Treasuries is up, and defaults aren't likely.
By Cécile Daurat

MANAGEMENT, STRATEGIES, TRENDS

50 Tone-deaf

Seagram got PolyGram, but only Edgar Bronfman thinks Hollywood will pay off.
By Robert La Franco

52 Death to the IMF

Milton Friedman and George Shultz agree: just kill it off.
By Robert Lenzner

54 Win-win, lose-lose

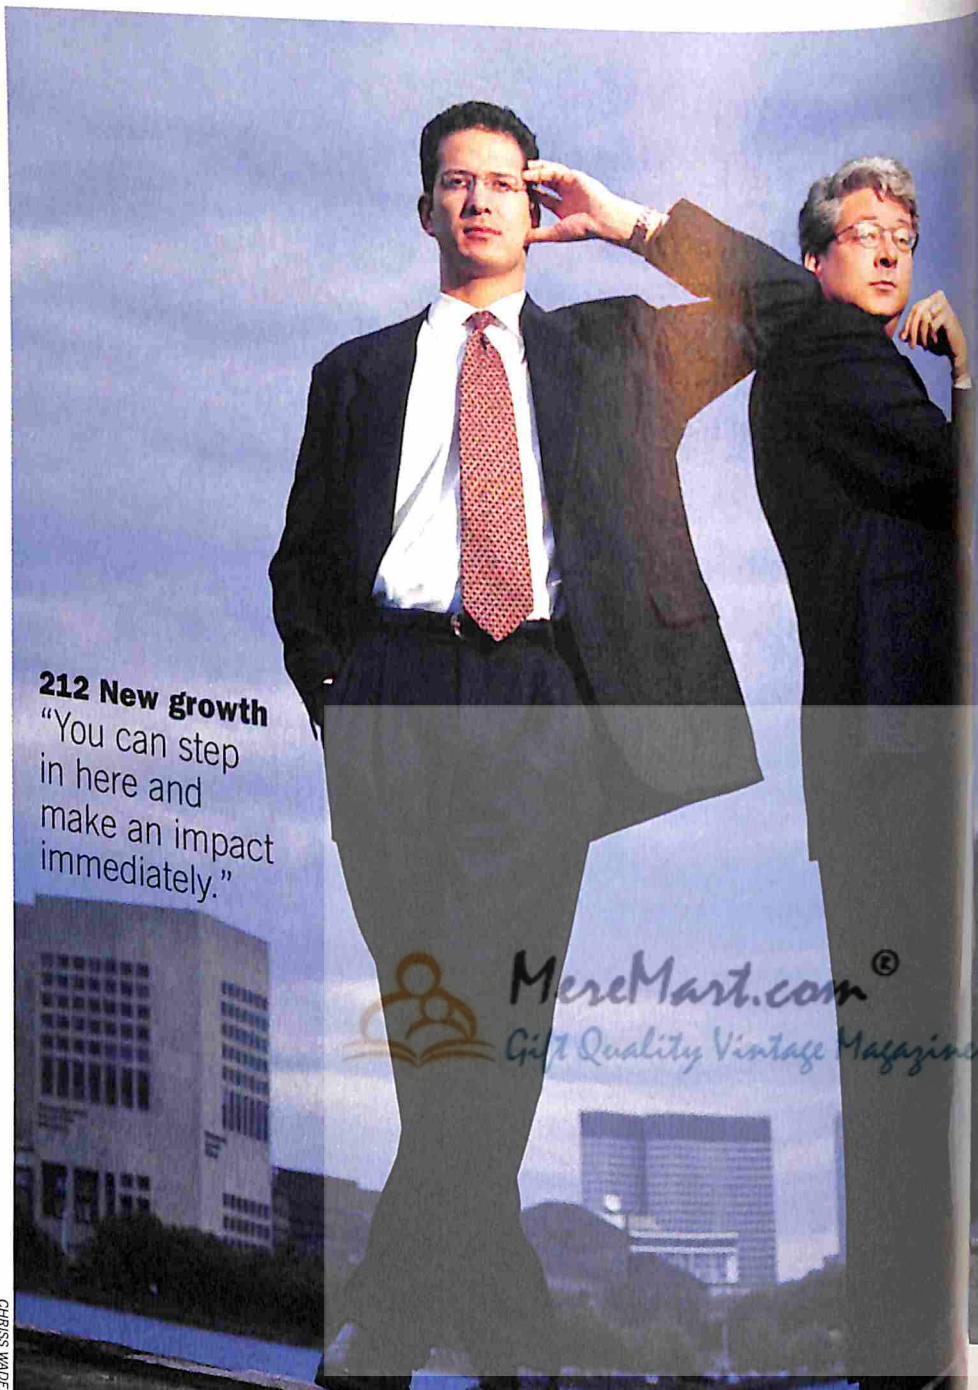

The yen/dollar "carry" game wasn't such a sure thing.
By Robert Lenzner

56 The WAMU hustle

Washington Mutual banks on good old-fashioned tellers.
By Seth Lubove

62 And the winner is . . .

Decre sets up a four-man tractor pull for the top spot.
By Bruce Upbin

CHRISS WADE

212 New growth
"You can step in here and make an impact immediately."

68 Let daddy help

A new corporate paternalism benefits manager and worker.
By Joanne Gordon

76 The big "what if?"

Live in fear of that great strategic blunder? Maybe it's time to see a futurist.
By Joseph R. Garber

82 What did you pay?

Technology gives new life to price discrimination.
By Scott Woolley

94 Byte-size math

For Compaq, the purchase of Digital almost pays for itself.
By Daniel Fisher

100 No more pills, please

Loaded with cash, Roche makes a move in diagnostics.
By Howard Banks

124 Default-risk bookies

KMV's black-box math lays odds on debtors going bust.
By Neil Weinberg

130 "No dumb growth"

The bottom line is new: the top line at Household International.
By Bernard Condon

141 Srpska calling

Ronald Lauder goes global with a new phone service.
By Kerry A. Dolan

CHARTICLE

60 Learning disability

In some states, schools outnumber the teachers.
By Peter Brimelow

200

BEST SMALL COMPANIES

196 It's tough at the top

The Best 200 cope with stock market blues.
By Luisa Kroll

198 The pickax theory

It's safer to look for companies that sell to gold seekers.
By Caroline Waxler

202 Closed for renovation

When the IPO market reopens, expect better goods.
By Luisa Kroll

204 Where are the geeks?

Why pure-Internet players are nowhere to be found.
By Josh McHugh

TEN TO WATCH

208 Boston Acoustics

By William P. Barrett

210 Koala

By Christopher Palmeri

212 Sapient

By Stephan Herrera

214 CryoLife

By Bruce Upbin

218 Pacific Sunwear

By Kelly Barron

220 Ducommun

By Robert La Franco

222 Media Arts

By Scott McCormack

224 Pre-Paid Legal

By Seth Lubove

226 Veritas

By Carleen Hawn

228 MacDermid

By Silvia Sansoni

246 Survival of the fittest

By Michael K. Ozanian and Kurt Badenhausen

247 The Superstars

By Steve Kichen

250 The 200 Best Small Companies

280 The Best 200 CEO pay

294 How the Best 200 rank

304 Finding the Best 200

310 Out—what???

Meitec brings the concept of outsourcing to Japan.
By Neil Weinberg

312 The Global 100

INTERNATIONAL

114 Counterrevolution

Economist Bernard Connolly fears a European bid to push half-capitalism, half-socialism.
By Peter Brimelow

LAW & ISSUES

88 On the Docket

Shutterbugs
For PhotoDisc, a picture may be worth 1,000 lawsuits.
By Tim W. Ferguson

90 Crime and punishment

Tough guy Judge Burton Roberts knows mandatory sentences just don't work.
By Dyan Machan

109 Dyadic duos

In the mentoring game, beware the harassment trap.
By Dan Seligman

136 Creative Giving

Job therapy
Pioneer wants your business, not some handout.
By Scott McCormack

Small-cap bargains
Buy junk bonds now?

Managing by the Holy Scriptures—the AES story

November 2, 1998

$4.95/Canada $5.95

www.forbes.com

Forbes

THE 200
BEST SMALL COMPANIES

The one to see in Silicon Valley

Angel investor Audrey MacLean seeds
the next superstars of technology

