10 By Any Other Name . . .

It was Green Bay against Dallas, the NFL championship teams, but this was August and just an exhibition

14 Dancer Makes It One for Nine

Behind Nevele Pride, Stanley Dancer captures the Hambletonian, the prize that had always eluded him

16 Dolls on the March to Mexico

The girls at the U.S. women's Olympic track and field trials were young, attractive—and awfully good

20 Revolt of the Touring Pros

The war between the PGA and the tournament players is simply this: each group wants control of the tour

22 Hawk Baby Is Big in Boston

Ken Harrelson, on the way out after his awful Series last fall, has come back swinging—at bat and on the town

28 In Full Cry with Peckover

When the Marylebone Cricket Club came to New York a bouncy Englishman was the busiest buff around

46 Boondock Heresy

A naturalist decides, reluctantly, that tourist-types who spend holidays in national parks aren't all bad

COLLEGE FOOTBALL 1968 promises to be a vintage year, one that is rich in returning stars and unusually strong teams, and one in which some famous old rivalries will wax hotter than ever. A portfolio of paintings captures the mood of such tradition-laden confrontations, and the deeds of Albie, Old 98, Doc and Glenn and the like are recalled. A more modern tradition, recruiting, is explored by Dan Jenkins through a case study of a high school quarterback's route to college. And also explored is that most exciting business, who will win, as once again our football staff selects the Top 20 teams and provides extensive scouting reports on each, plus what happened to the have-nots, a small-college review and some new faces to watch for. And, of course, all our regular features and news.
