

A Letter from the Publisher

*When I am dead, I hope it may be said:
"His sins were scarlet, but his books were read."*

That sentiment, written by British Author Hilaire Belloc, may well be echoed by the authors and publishers who send some 60 volumes per week to the TIME Books section in the hope that their works will be reviewed. As Christmas approaches, the incoming stream becomes a torrent in anticipation of our annual section on gift books, which appears in this issue. The new volumes—on subjects ranging from Peruvian highways to Sumerian icons, from precious plants to psychic phenomena—are delivered to the office of Books Editor Stefan Kanfer. "It's like getting a lot of Christmas cards," he says. "You are suddenly reminded not only of people, but also of subjects that you haven't been in touch with for a long time."

Kanfer's office in its normal state is legendary for its clutter. As the Christmas volumes pile ever higher, it becomes increasingly difficult to maneuver to the editor's desk. Says Kanfer: "The maids used to say, 'Oh, Mr. Kanfer, if you would just clean your office once a week, it would be so nice.' Now they say, 'Mr. Kanfer, if you would just clean your office once a month...'" What Kanfer does not mention is that he was once assaulted by a cleaning lady driven to violence over the impenetrable litter. The cause of her ire: the discovery of her long-lost feather duster under a pile of manuscripts.

Sheppard, Gray and Kanfer confer amidst the clutter

Kanfer, Senior Writer R.Z. Sheppard and Associate Editor Paul Gray write most of TIME's reviews. "To find a good book to review and to get back on ground, we each read up to six books a week," says Gray, who once taught English at Princeton. Says Sheppard, who was editor of the book supplement of the now defunct New York Herald Tribune: "The question people always ask is, 'Do you speed-read?' No, I don't. Reading is a pleasure; like eating or loving, it should not be rushed. After the books have been read and the reviews written, the three relax by playing folk rock on ukulele, guitar and washtub-and-broom-handle bass. Then, as he did last week, Kanfer sits back and reflects on the gentlemanly art of viewing: "I've written books too, so I've played both sides of the net," he says. "Which is easier? The net."

Ralph P. Davidson

Index

26 Cover: As the Pacific Northwest strives to preserve its beauty while developing its economy, Dixy Lee Ray, the feisty Governor of Washington, sounds off on oil, nuclear power and U.S. control of the land. See THE NATION.

38 The World
Has Egypt's Anwar Sadat moved too far too fast? Arab anger clouds the prospect for his pre-Geneva summit in Cairo. ▶ South Africa's Vorster, campaigning against Jimmy Carter, wins overwhelmingly. ▶ A Rhodesian raid imperils settlement talks. ▶ The word is alive (and almost well) in Poland and China.

59 Art
Louise Nevelson's stunning walk-in sculpture is shown in Manhattan. ▶ A moving requiem for Loxodonta africana.

98 The Law
Illinois becomes the latest state to adopt fixed jail sentences, an idea whose time—conservatives and cons say—has come.

12 The Nation: U.S. mayors make a pitch for help from the Feds. ▶ Jimmy Carter considers possible successors to Arthur Burns. ▶ A jury convicts "Nicky" Barnes—a legend in Harlem—for conspiring to distribute heroin.

64 Music
A medley of new and excellent classical recordings provides a listener's guide—and a holiday shopper's list as well.

100 Science
Fed up with UFOs, the Bermuda Triangle and assorted tales of the paranormal, a new committee fights irrationality.

71 Economy & Business
Crisis over export boom causes Japanese Cabinet shake-up. ▶ U.S. coal strike starts. ▶ Labor lays siege to J.P. Stevens.

106 The Sexes
New view of male sexuality. ▶ Seagulls turn to lesbianism. ▶ Judge rules that fanny pinching is cause for a pinch.

82 Books: Readings of the season: a colorful Yuletide of publications grand and small for every age and interest. Perfect gifts for lovers of antique automobiles, animals, Gothic spires, tennis, space photography, fine art and lots more.

80 Medicine
Study of 17,000 Harvard grads shows that running and other vigorous exercise really do cut the risk of heart attacks.

111 The Press
After 13 years of punditry on CBS, Eric Sevareid signs off. ▶ China expels Newsman Ross Munro, one of its severest critics.

94 Television
The three top-rated series, which make Tuesday nights sparkle for ABC, hold up at fun-house mirror to the nation's psyche.

5 Letters
90 Milestones
92 People
96 The Theater

DECEMBER 12, 1977

$1.00

CHRISTMAS BOOKS
The Art of Giving

TIME

The Pacific Northwest

Washington Governor
Dixy Lee Ray

 JUL70 GRL 99093093T 99 69 67
 MRS D A CARLSON
 BOX 99
 MN YORK MLS MN 96967