

This is the true story of How long-term care insurance helped secure your retirement

(At least, it could be.)

$66,000 bucks a year for a nursing home?*

At that rate, you'd burn through your hard-won nest egg in no time. Thing is, though, you're not worried. Because the long-term care insurance you got after talking to Prudential can help pay the bill—if it ever comes to that.

You decided it was going to be different for you.

Your parents didn't even know about long-term care insurance until it was too late. And you saw how hard it is to pay for care out of your own pocket. So you purchased while you were still young—and coverage was much more affordable.

Your policy gives you choices. Like staying in your own home and getting the care you need right there. Even better, your spouse, or someone else in the family, may handle your care and your policy can help pay them for it. Now that's flexible.

And the rising cost of care is less of a worry.

An inflation protection feature was built right into your policy, so your benefit amount rises nicely over time.

Talk about greater peace of mind. And financial security. All it took were the right products and a little planning with the right partner, Prudential Financial. Growing and protecting your wealth—for the long term.
